Gobi encountered cheese two years after he came down to Kathmandu.

Prakash Babu was returning from Switzerland. That land of miraculous clocks which always told the time in minute precision, not like the few minutes late, few minutes early time of Nepal. That twin land of mountains, that mirror image of peaks, but so much more Westernized, so much more modern, than Nepal's own mythologically burdened ones. Everybody was sure the mountains of Switzerland must somehow be a little bit better, a little bit nicer, a little bit more civilized, than their own poor, benighted country's. Never mind if Nepal had the tallest ones in the world - who cared about tall when there were more important things to think about, like cleanliness and hygiene. Modernity and precision. Who cared about tall when you could have the cleanest, most sanitized, most modern mountains in the world.

Prakash brought back with him a suitcase full of gifts: cashmere sweaters, Italian leather shoes, quartz watches, wooden birds that popped out of wooden houses and went "Cuckoo!", porcelain figurines holding hoes and buckets in pink and gold. And stuffed into some side pocket of the hard vinyl suitcase was the most important of them all - a grab-bag of airline goodies, with the name of the airline. After all, how could one prove one had flown an airline without one of those bags filled with mustard yellow socks, black eye-strain masks, little plastic containers of orange marmalade, plastic spoons and knives, little mint candies? How convince a country populated with disbelievers that those claims, indeed, were true? French chocolate was always good, a solid chunk of bitter foreign material melting into your tongue and signifying distance, travel, adventure, truth. But even chocolate, these days, could be bought at some shop, and was no longer a reliable indicator of long and distant travel. The only sure proof, these days, was cheese.

The cheese sent the household in Mahaboudh into a minor furore, and got the neighbours talking even before Prakash Babu arrived. Sharmila, the recent married daughter-in-law, was so excited she boasted haughtily to no one other than Fulmaya, the teashop lady: "Prakash Babu wrote to us, telling us he'll bring some cheese. Cheese from Switzerland, if you can imagine what that is like. But how can Nepalese ever appreciate real cheese, when they haven't even tasted any?" Fulmaya, never one to give up a good piece of gossip, had told the entire neighbourhood about the cheese by the end of the morning. "Those Tiwaris will be talking about the cheese - Surjyaland cheese, if you can imagine what that is like," she said, imitating the recent bride's stuck-up tones, "for the next ten years." The old woman who sat in the tiny butcher shop next door snorted. "Yeah, Sanokanchi. Who the fuck does that fool of a girl think she is, anyway? And cheese - that family can stick it up their insides, for all we care. After all, we're never going to see a piece of it, are? huh, huh?"

The Spanish Armada 1588

The attack on Drake and Hawkins in St. Juan d'Ulloa in 1569 began the long struggle between England and Spain which lasted until the death of Elizabeth. It was not only a matter of trade and treasure; it was also a religious war. King Philip II of Spain was the Catholic champion; Queen Elizabeth was the leader of the Protestants.

While Mary Queen of Scots was alive, the Catholic plan was to put Mary on the English throne and so bring England back to the Catholic faith. When Mary was executed in 1587, Philip decided to build a great fleet and conquer England himself. There was much to be said for this plan. Philip could expect help from some of the Catholics in England, and he had a fine Spanish army under the Duke of Parma in the Netherlands. If he could get this army across to England, there was every chance of success, for his soldiers were the finest in Europe.

King Philip ordered that the greatest fleet Spain could muster should be made ready for battle. The ports of Spain rang with the sound of the carpenters' hammers, and stores piled up on the quayside. Twenty thousand soldiers, eight thousand sailors and three thousand galley slaves were trained to man the mighty Armada of one hundred and thirty ships.

Dear Sirs,

On 10 March 2005 I bought a refrigerator from you for £350 which I paid for with VISA credit card.

The refrigerator does not work properly. It produces quite a loud noise and takes much more electricity than stated in the manual. Moreover, the temperature in one of the freezer shelves never falls below 2°C.

I have had it repaired twice so far but both repairs have not brought positive results. Therefore, I am now claiming a refund of £350 as is my right under the Sale of Goods Act 1979 as amended.

If I do not receive this amount or a reply within the next 14 days, I will be taking the matter further not excluding legal action to recover my refund.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Yours faithfully,
Andrzej Cirocki

Dear Sirs,

I regret to inform you that the Cooker Hood which was delivered to my flat on 13 June 2005 does not work. It is the second one I have had to return this month.

I bought this hood from BSH Store in London on 10 March 2005. I was careful to follow all the instructions for use but every time I switch on the hood it does not want to start. Nothing works except the green light which is on all the time.

I have always found your products to be excellent but this time I feel bitterly disappointed.

I would be grateful if you would send me either a replacement, covering all delivery expenses or pay me all my money back.

I look forward to hearing from you in the near future.

Yours faithfully,

Andrzej Cirocki

ĆWICZENIE 1

Niger 'to free' slave activists

A Niger court has ordered the release (1) _____ bail of two anti-slavery campaigners (2) _____ had been held for six weeks on charges (3) _____ fraud. The appeals court in the capital, Niamey, said (4) _____ were insufficient grounds to continuing holding the men.

Ilguilas Weila and Alassane Biga deny (5) _____ to falsely elicit money from foreign donors. The charges relate to a ceremony to free 7,000 slaves, cancelled at the last minute in March (6) _____ the government. The authorities maintain slavery (7) _____ not exist in Niger.

London-based Anti-Slavery International has been urging the authorities to release Mr Weila and Mr Biga, who (8) _____ work for the anti-slave organisation, Timidria. "The government's actions appear to be a concerted campaign not (9) _____ to discredit their reputation and the work of Timidria, but (10) _____ to silence efforts to end slavery in the country," said Anti-Slavery International Africa Programme Officer Romana Cacchioli.

ĆWICZENIE 2*Rescued Niger slaves 'tortured'

Aid workers have been giving details (1) _____ the physical and psychological trauma suffered (2) _____ 10 slaves rescued on Monday in the Tahoua (3) _____ of northern Niger. One human rights official, Iglass Weiller, said the 10 men, women and children, (4) _____ had been slaves (5) _____ their lives, had suffered torture and starvation. He told a press conference in the capital Niamey on Wednesday that the (6) _____ of the slaves - who has not (7) _____ been apprehended - had raped the women and girls regularly. Despite a prohibition (8) _____ the centuries-old practice, keeping slaves is (9) _____ widespread in many areas (10) _____ northern Niger.

ĆWICZENIE 3*What lies behind the Zimbabwe demolitions?

The homes of some 200,000 Zimbabwean city dwellers have been demolished in the (1) _____ three weeks, according (2) _____ the United Nations. Police have been moving (3) _____ area to area, in some cases forcing people to knock down their own homes. In others, they have turned up (4) _____ bulldozers to demolish structures (5) _____ they say have been built illegally. "We were busking, enjoying the winter sun (6) _____ we heard trucks and bulldozers roll in. (7) _____ was pandemonium as we rushed to salvage the little we could," one resident of the capital, Harare told the BBC News website. "In no (8) _____ the cottage I had called home for three years was gone. Then it dawned on me that I was now (9) _____, you try and pinch yourself and wake up but this was no dream. My life had been shattered before my very own (10) _____."
